Getting started

CHARGING BATTERIES:

We recommend that you charge new batteries before using them. While charging, one or more red lights will illuminate. When all lights or no lights are illuminated, the battery is charged and ready for use.

fig. 2

ASSEMBLE MASTER CADDY:

Fix your Hard Disk or Solid State Drive into the Master Caddy as shown (fig. 3). Align screw holes on all three pieces and assemble completely. Insert screws last.

Important: Do not over-tighten screws or alignment can not be guaranteed. We suggest squeezing the corners together near the screw you are tightening for optimal fit.

⚠ Handle the HDD or SSD with care
Touch screw holes or metal shell first. Avoid contact with circuit board and connectors. Refer to manual if unfamiliar with handling ESD sensitive devices.

Connect & Power-up

ATTACH BATTERIES:

Connect one or both batteries to the Samurai. Use the battery connector marked with a '1' for the first battery. You should consider this your primary battery and the other as a secondary/back-up battery.

The Samurai utilises only one battery at a time. This way a battery can be removed, charged and replaced during operation. Refer to complete User Manual for more information.

⚠ Important Samurai can only power up from the Primary [1] battery position

CONNECT:

Video Input
Connect camera to Samurai using SDI cable with supplied SDI Adaptor

Video Output
Connect external device via SDI cable with our SDI Adaptor

Insert
Insert Master Caddy into the Samurai until it clicks into position

LANC Remote
Optionally control the Samurai using LANC remote control connected here (use 2.5mm TRS/ 3-pin plug)

Share remote control with other devices (loop thru) by connecting them to the second LANC connector

Audio
Stereo Line In

Stereo Line Out or Headphones

fig. 5

Eject
To eject Master Caddy, slide the latch on the side of the Samurai. The Master Caddy is hot-swappable so you can do this at any time, except while recording

Mount
Mount the Samurai on or between camera or tripod using the standard tripod screw mounts top and bottom

POWER:

On/Off
Briefly press the circular button on the side of the Samurai to power-up

To shutdown, depress button for at least 4 seconds (until unit turns off)

Monitor & Record

The Samurai is controlled by a touchscreen interface. We hope this will be immediately intuitive.

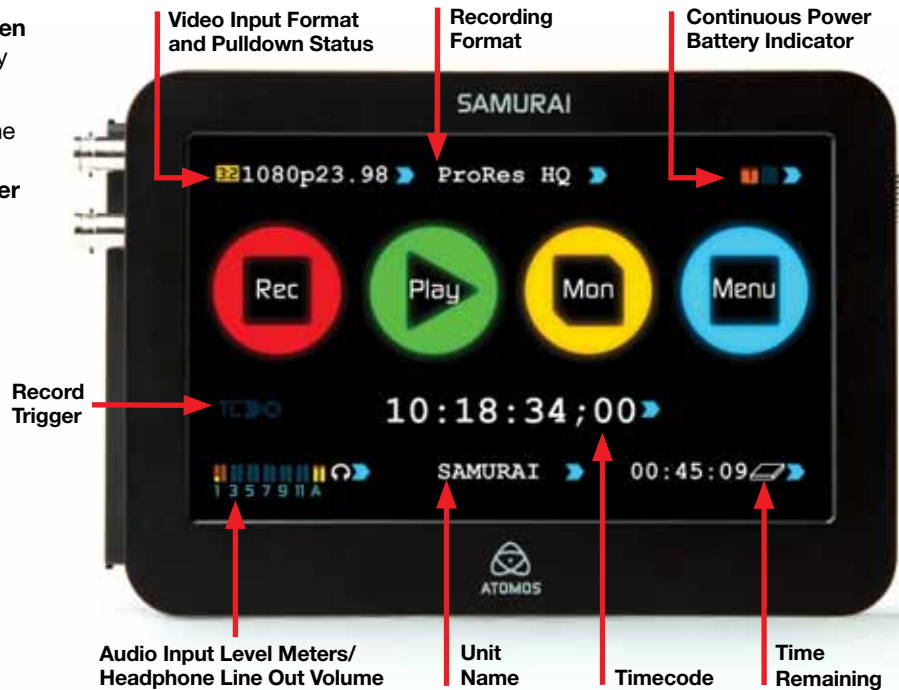

Presented here is a brief description of the main controls seen when the Samurai is first powered up. Please refer to the User Manual for more details.

➔ access

Pay special attention to any items on screen which are marked by a small blue arrow. Touch these items to access or cycle thru related options.

⬅ return

A larger blue arrow in the top right corner of the screen will return you from other menus to the main controls.

Connect & Ready-to-edit

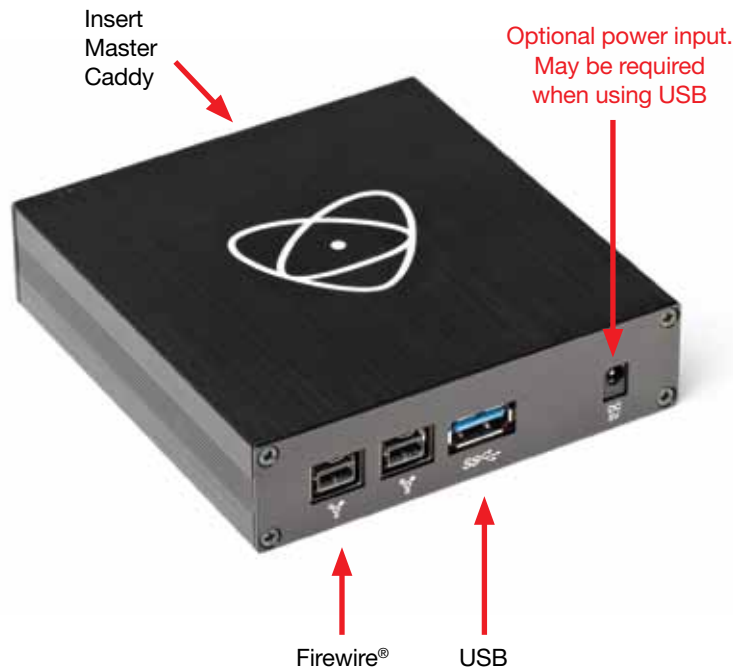

MASTER CADDY DOCKING STATION:

To access and edit your recorded material, connect the Master Caddy Docking Station to a Mac® or Windows® editing workstation via USB 2.0, USB 3.0 or FireWire® port.

! When using USB, you may also need to connect power to the Docking Station using the included USB power cable and connecting it to a USB 2.0 port. Try this if you encounter problems.

READY-TO-EDIT:

Finally, eject the Master Caddy from the Ninja and insert it into the Docking Station. After a short wait your recorded video will be accessible as a standard external disk (ExFAT file system).

For more detailed instructions and important up-to-date information regarding the Samurai please consult the complete user manual:
